

VisaProcess — Make your visa journey simple

View the live site → visaprocess.framer.website

VisaProcess

A trust-first website that turns anxious visa applicants into booked consultations.

Project Context

VisaProcess is a visa consultancy that helps people study, work, and relocate abroad. The client needed a marketing website that would build instant credibility, make a tangled set of services easy to understand, and turn nervous visitors into booked consultations. The design challenge was emotional as much as visual — visa applicants are stressed, skeptical, and often burned by past rejections, so every section had to reassure before it sold. The solution leads with proof: a success rate, real client stories, and recognisable destinations, then guides each visitor to the right visa and a single, clear next step.

CLIENT	ROLE
VisaProcess (visa consultancy)	Web Design & Build
TEAM	TIMELINE
Individual Project	6 Weeks · 2026

Problem

VisaProcess ran almost entirely on referrals and WhatsApp. Prospective clients — many anxious after a past rejection or confused by requirements across dozens of countries — had no credible place to learn what the company offered, or any reason to trust it over a competitor. Services were scattered and jargon-heavy, and there was no obvious way to take a first step. For a service business, that meant qualified leads quietly leaking away: every anxious visitor who left unconvinced was lost revenue, and growth stayed capped at word-of-mouth.

75%

of users judge a company's credibility on its website design alone.

1 in 4

first-time applications are delayed or rejected over avoidable mistakes.

50+

destination countries — each with different, confusing requirements to navigate.

Indicative figures. Sources: Stanford Web Credibility Research · visa-applicant interviews. Replace with your study's data.

Approach

I treated the homepage as a trust-building journey, not a brochure. The methodology: map what makes an anxious applicant feel safe enough to act, then sequence the page so reassurance always comes before the ask — and make the next step impossible to miss.

1

Lead with proof, not pitch

Surface the success rate, real testimonials early — so credibility lands before any sales copy.

Key decision: trust signals above the fold.

2

Organise around the goal

Replace internal service jargon with six clear visa types, so visitors self-select by their actual reason to travel.

Key decision: structure by user intent, not org chart.

3

One unmistakable next step

Funnel every section toward a single, low-friction action — "Book a Free Consultation" — repeated at each decision point.

Key decision: one primary CTA, everywhere.

What was the problem I was trying to solve?

How might we turn an anxious, skeptical visa applicant into a confident, booked consultation — in a single scroll?

Final Solution

A homepage that reassures, clarifies, and converts — top to bottom.

Visa Type Finder

Six clear visa categories — student, tourist, work, family, residence, investor — let visitors self-select by their goal instead of decoding service jargon.

Each card explains who it's for in a sentence and leads straight to detail, turning a confusing decision into an obvious one.

Intent-based Scannable cards Clear next step

Proof & Trust

A bold stats band puts the numbers that matter front and centre — 98% success rate, 12+ years, 25K+ clients, 24/7 support — the reassurance anxious applicants need.

Supporting cards translate those numbers into promises: approved faster, guided at every step, across 50+ countries.

Success metrics Credibility Reassurance

Real Client Stories

Authentic testimonials — including a client who succeeded after a prior rejection — do the emotional heavy lifting, showing nervous visitors people just like them who made it.

Names, roles and ratings make the proof concrete, so trust is earned before the visitor is ever asked to book.

Social proof Relatable stories Trust to action

Results

A site that looks as credible as the service — and converts strangers into consultations.

+64%

more consultation bookings after launch

2.4×

qualified enquiries from organic visitors

-41%

bounce rate on the homepage

98%

success rate, now front and centre as proof

Representative results — replace with the project's verified analytics.

“

The new site finally looks like the premium service we actually provide. Enquiries jumped almost immediately — and clients now arrive already trusting us, because they've seen our success rate and the real stories before they ever reach out.

Founder, VisaProcess

Visa consultancy · client

Tools & Timeline

Six weeks from brief to a live, fully responsive marketing site — designed and built end-to-end.

Week 1

Discovery

Client & applicant interviews, audit, content map.

Weeks 2–3

Design

Brand direction, wireframes, hi-fi UI in Figma.

Weeks 4–5

Build

Framer build, CMS for blog, responsive & SEO.

Week 6

Launch

QA, polish, handover and go-live.

Tools & technologies

Figma Framer Framer CMS Illustrator SEO

Responsive web

Scope

Strategy · content map & conversion flow

Visual design · brand direction & UI system

Build · Framer site, CMS blog, responsive & SEO

Outcome & Reflection

A trust-first marketing site that turns a stressful, high-stakes decision into a confident first step — giving a referral-only consultancy a credible front door it can finally grow on.

WHAT I'D EXPLORE NEXT

A guided "find your visa" quiz, a document-checklist tool, and localised landing pages per country — turning the site from a brochure into an interactive first consultation.